Clean Up at Greys Island Cemetery

by Don Bowman

Mysterious things keep happening at and around the Greys Island Cemetery. One mystery about the place of rest established in 1825, is its name. It was founded on Grays Island Road and, mistakenly, the plaque at the front gate is labeled Gray's Island Cemetery rather than Greys Island Cemetery. Recently, the head of the white marble monument, built in memory of Jennie Steeves, was returned to the cemetery. The monument is scheduled to be restored to its original state and will remain a centerpiece to the myth of the Greys Island Ghost hauntings.

Likely the most terrible haunting of our ancestral resting place is the trash left behind on the island that disgraces our community. A call to action was put in place by the board members of Greys Island Cemetery Inc. to clean up the mess. Hillsborough Mayor, Bob Rochon, was contacted and he immediately offered his help. Bob reached out to ECO360 to make sure the trash qualified for delivery to their bins. This conversation led to a clean-up plan put forth by ECO360. Their people volunteered to clean up the refuse during their scheduled community drop-off in Hillsborough. We didn't expect this as we were prepared to do the cleanup and delivery to the bins ourselves, but we greatly appreciated it. For their help and hard work we would like to say a special thank you to Malcolm, Susan, Gerry, John, and Shawn - our clean up Heroes!

A Book Walk by the Pond

by Chandra Smith

A great summertime activity. The Hillsborough Women's Institute has put up a book walk on the trail behind the Tourist bureau in Hillsborough entitled "Be a Pond Detective". There are 10 stakes on the trail and it is suitable for children of all ages. Morning or evening walks provide more activity of living birds and animals.

The idea came from a trip to a garden in Florida where a similar book walk was happening. Then, with the assistance of a local librarian, the idea was brought to life in Hillsborough. The Hillsborough Women's Institute has had a long relationship with both the local school and library by promoting reading and contributing financial support. This is now being spread to the community as a whole.

The show features the work of Nat Cann, Gerry Collins, Bonny Hill, I-Chun Jenkins, Heather McCaig, ReBecca Paterson, Yulia Porkhun, and Julie Whitenect. The exhibition will be arriving in the last week of July, with a vernissage on July 30th at 6pm.

Drawing inspiration from the site's storied past as the former home of North America's first female sea captain, the exhibition will explore knowledge shared through creating, the cyclical nature of rural life, and gender representation in industry. Curated by Chloe Lundrigan. The vernissage will take place August 5th at 7pm in the Molly Kool Heritage Center. All are welcome to attend. ## Welcome to Maison Albert House! Palliative and End-of-Life Care Close to Home such as meals, are personalized to the needs of each of our residents to ensure comfort and dignity. Most costs are covered; however, for medications or personal products, insurance or Medicare coverage may be required.

Hospice Southeast New Brunswick (Hospice SENB) is a registered charity established in 2004 to promote awareness about life-limiting illnesses and end-of-life issues. Hospice SENB has been providing comprehensive services to our communities for over a decade, including volunteer in-home hospice care, grief and bereavement support, as well as caregiver support. However, after over 15 years of visioning and planning, due to the commitment of several volunteers and staff members, Hospice SENB was able to build and open a 10-bed residential hospice facility at 156 Pleasant Street in Moncton, serving Albert, Kent and Westmorland Counties. The residential hospice is the first of its kind in southeastern New Brunswick.

The large residents' rooms all have a private washroom, large television, WIFI, wardrobe, bedside table, seating and recliner, and large ground-floor windows to allow for lots of light. Each suite allows for individual temperature control and has a mini fridge to keep personal items. The residents, families and others can also enjoy the common shared spaces, kitchen, family and meditation rooms, 4 family rooms, and outdoor Serenity Garden and surrounding grounds. By design, the facilities are meant to emulate being "at-home" while having access to quality, expert care. Visits are allowed night and day, seven days a week, including your furry friends.

Since opening in August 2021, Maison Albert House has welcomed and served over 100 residents and their families providing personalized, confidential and free services. The unique model integrates team members from the Extra-Mural Program (under the management of Medavie Health Services), Maison Albert House and a team of rostered physicians. Our care, as well as services

Besides our wonderful personnel, Hospice SENB counts on the help of hundreds of dedicated volunteers either to serve as greeters, in-home or in-residence visitors, kitchen support, or to assist in the Boutique Hospice Shoppe at 164 Collishaw Street.

If you would like more information on Maison Albert House or how best to support Hospice SENB, please visit www.hospicesenb.ca or call 1-506-383-2404.

Planning for the Holiday Season

by Cyber PR Army

Why you need to be planning your holiday season now (Yes, really!)

It's August... you are likely enjoying the sunny weather, sipping a cool drink, and enjoying a brief respite from the last few months. The holiday retail season couldn't be further from your mind. After all, who wants to think about Black Friday till October, right?

You may not usually think about the retail season during the summer, but what if we told you that there are only 146 days between August 1st and Christmas Day? Still not feeling the urgency? There are less than 70 days to Thanksgiving.

Get ahead of the chain.

By the time you read this, there will be less than two months to Thanksgiving. Once you enter the run-up to Thanksgiving, you know as well as we do that you will be run ragged. Sure, you might be able to plan for Thanksgiving closer to the time, but can you really find time to deal with Thanksgiving, Halloween, Black Friday, and Christmas one after another?

It's time to plan.

Now is the time for you to sit down and plan. Trust us, you are making your life far easier and your retail season much more likely to be a success.

Think about...

- Which events your business needs to mark between September and December.
- How will you mark these occasions? Are you running promos or just raising awareness?
- The targets you want to hit. No marketing initiative is successful unless you start with a goal. Do you want more online customers, more sign-ups, more repeat customers, more in-store traffic?

- How will you track your progress? Targets are essential, but without processes in place they can be hard to track.
- What platforms and techniques will you use to draw attention to your business? Will you use Facebook, Google Ads, podcasts, blogs, webinars?

Your digital marketing timeline

Successful campaigns take time - time to plan, time to create cohesive, effective assets, and time to build momentum before the big day. Let's use Thanksgiving as an example.

If there are 70 days to Thanksgiving, you will want to be running your campaign a couple of weeks ahead of time at a minimum. So that puts us at 56 days out.

If you are outsourcing your asset creation, that will likely take another two weeks, putting us at 42 days out. If you are creating in-house, you will need to juggle other responsibilities too, so let's add a week.

Now you have either 42 days or 35 days of wiggle room. But we can't jump straight into creation.

You will want a further two weeks to plan, set targets, and set up monitoring systems.

Boom. Just like that, even if you are on the ball, there are just 28 days (or 21 if you keep things in-house) of wiggle room between now and Thanksgiving.

Those days are already earmarked

We have 28 days yet to allocate, but, as we said at the top of this article, Thanksgiving is not the only upcoming retail milestone. Most Canadian small businesses mark Halloween, Black Friday/Small Business Saturday/Cyber Monday, and Christmas to some degree.

Once the retail season gets into full swing, you will be caught up in inventory, gift-wrapping, staff rotas and all manner of other essential day-to-day tasks.

Now is your window to plan your epic digital marketing campaign for the upcoming retail season. Get ahead of the game to up your success and efficiency while reducing the stress on your to-dos.

If you do one thing...

If you haven't started thinking about the holiday retail season, it's time to move the needle. One step can start the ball rolling, so let's do this! Take some time to jot down what you want to achieve. Once you have this key piece of information, the strategizing can begin.

Set the plans in place and let's end this year with a bang!

“Without having to worry about paying entrance fees and saving money, visitors will love the convenience of the new all-access passes, as they’ve been consistently asking for one,” says Annick Robichaud Butland, owner of ABConnect Tourism & Travel Services, based in Hillsborough.

The passes are priced for the year and are available in three categories, which include:
