Gardening with Kris

from Foods of The Fundy Valley

by Kris Buck

The beautiful frost covered province of New Brunswick extends across two planting zones (4 and 5). The region is made up of rolling hills, sweeping flatlands, floodplains, rugged cliffs, and long coastlines, making it challenging for even the most experienced of gardeners.

Two of the most important aspects of gardening are knowing when to plant and what to plant in your vegetable or flower garden. However, it can be difficult to know the exact time to begin planting in order for a garden to flourish throughout the growing season. If your plant or garden fails to thrive, simply adjusting your planting time frame might make a big difference. A planting calendar takes the guesswork out of the process.

How does it work?

Planting calendars are designed to calculate the best time to start seeds and plant a garden. Timing for all planting is based on first and last frost dates. For example, if planting in hardiness zone 5, the last frost date is generally between April 1st – April 15th, and the first frost date typically falls between October 16th – October 31st. These dates will, in part, dictate the best planting time and tend to vary year by year.

From specific plants and vegetables that thrive in one particular zone, to when to plant, to how much water is needed, to when to harvest, the calendar provides everything you need to know to grow a bountiful garden.

What is a frost date?

A frost date is the first and last average day, or range of days, a frost is usually experienced in a zone. These are important to know, as some plants will not tolerate extreme cold from a frost. Keep frost dates in mind when deciding when to plant to ensure you have a garden that grows and produces as much as possible.

When to plant vegetables?

If you are wondering when is the best time to plant vegetables in a specific area, or what types tend to do better where you live, a planting and growing calendar is the first place you should look.

You can plant and enjoy almost any vegetable here, as long as you are cognizant of when to actually put something in the ground. For instance, broccoli and kale are planted in March – April, whereas corn and tomatoes won't go in the ground until May – June. A planting calendar helps you decide exactly when to plant every type of vegetable.

When to plant flowers?

Determining when to plant flowers is easy once you learn the first and last frost date in your zone. Zones can be divided even amongst themselves, which can slightly vary suggested planting dates by a week or two. Always look at the type of flower to see if it will tolerate your zone and frost dates. Hardy flowers like pansies and alyssum will survive light frosts, whereas tender flowers like dahlias and nasturtium need warm soil to grow properly. So, it is the type of flower combined with frost dates that will be the ultimate guide in creating a garden calendar that will result in the most beautiful blooms and bounty.

When to plant herbs?

Most herbs can be started from seed indoors or outdoors. Young starter plants can be put directly in the ground. All three options will often yield a great result. When to actually start or plant an herb greatly depends on the zone and the type of herb you want to grow. Some herbs like chives can be started indoors 8 – 10 weeks, or outside 3 – 4 weeks, before the last frost.

How to calculate planting dates?

Calculating planting dates is different for each plant. It's based on the growing zone, frost dates and a plant's maturity date and needs. A planting schedule can be created by determining the first frost date and then working backwards.

This will help figure out the best planting date for whatever you are growing. The goal is to ensure a plant has enough time to mature before the first frost of the year. Once armed with this information, check the growing and maturity times for each individual plant or vegetable you will plant.

To plan your garden more accurately in the future, keep a record of your garden's conditions each year, including frost dates and seed-starting dates. If you're looking to access a calendar of your own, we recommend you check out The Old Farmer's Almanac at www.almanac.com/gardening/planting-calendar. In the meantime have fun and happy gardening!

And the Award Goes to ...

by Amanda Rossiter

On May 14, 2022, for the first time since Covid started, the Albert County Chamber of Commerce was able to hold its 5th Annual Business Excellence Awards live and in person at the Broadleaf Ranch. It was an exceptional event to be invited to and take part in. The dining room was beautifully decorated, the Chamber of Commerce Directors were fabulous hosts, the food was exceptional.

The evening's theme was The Albert County Transformation and highlighted the wonderful ways the Albert County businesses were able to work together and support each other over the last two years. The business owners have emerged on the other side of Covid stronger, determined and ready to move ahead towards the next opportunities that the change and challenge have brought them.

Throughout the evening we heard from many local people who have brought their experiences and expertise to our county. Don Coleman's video, "Albert County Home Sweet Home", was shared with the attendees. Don gave us a quick chat about how important this county is to him and shared that 100% of the funds raised from this video are being shared in the form of bursaries for graduates of local high schools and various other local and Canadian charities.

We were also treated to a photo and video presentation by local author, photographer and nature enthusiast, Kevin Snair. Kevin is a former Interpretive Guide and Public Relations and Marketing Coordinator for the Hopewell Rocks, who has recently accepted a position with Hurtigruten Expeditions travelling to Antarctica. His presentation showcased his most recent trip there and the amazing footage he was able to capture with his unique photography and videography skills.

The keynote speaker for the evening was Byron Gourley, the owner of the newly opening Gateway Market in Hillsborough. Gateway Market is a grocery store that serves and employs community members throughout the region of Albert County. He discussed economic development in New Brunswick and its effects on local commerce. In the months leading up to the Gateway Market opening, Byron has already become an excellent supporter of our community, as he has employed all local people from the community to conduct all of the renovation work on his building as well local people who will be working in the store once it opens.

The food throughout the evening was a collaboration of local restaurant talents. The hors d'oeuvres were created by Hearth & Hive, appetizers by Fundy Farms: Local Harvest, dinner by Broadleaf Ranch and desserts by the Homestead Restaurant and Wacky Wonderful Waffles. All in attendance enjoyed all courses of the meal.

Award recipients for the evening were as follows:

- Community Care & Service Award: won by Fundy Farms: Local Harvest
- Artistic Excellence Award: won by Chris Colepaugh / CCLC Productions
- Tourism Excellence Award: won by ABConnect Travel
- People's Choice Award: won by Tosh Taylor & The Podcast Hub
- Emerging Business of the Year Award: won by RevelYOUTHsion Studios
- Non-Profit of the Year Award: Codiac Cycling Trails

Award recipients each received a beautiful glass statue created by Glass Roots Inc Canada. Many different businesses were acknowledged throughout the evening. If you think of a business that deserves to be nominated for one of these awards, then keep an ear out for next year's nomination time in Spring 2023. Anyone can fill out the nomination forms for these awards. Everyone in attendance thoroughly enjoyed the evening. It was so very refreshing to be out for a live and in person event in our area again. We are grateful to have been invited to attend the evening's event and are already looking forward to next year's event.

Kiwanis is Active in our Communities

by Don Bowman

Do you know what Kiwanis Members have been up to?

We were happy to participate in the Community Clean-up that was set up by the Village of Hillsborough. Together the community members were able to collect a trailer load of waste and contribute to making our community even more beautiful.

We were also excited to be a part of the Hillbilly Run and Heartland on the 28th of May by serving up locally made hamburgers. Proceeds from The Annual Hillbilly Run support Shenstone Cemetery and other community projects.

Some of our upcoming events for June include an Open House on the 4th that includes the Annual Spring Draw with prizes of a zero turn mower, trimmer and pressure washer. Our second breakfast of the year will be held on the 11th from 8:00-10:00am in support of the Anglican Church Bazaar.

We are actively seeking information and pictures from our community about past Kiwanis members. We are sharing the details found on our past presidents on the Hillsborough Kiwanis Presidents page to celebrate these community leaders and their families. It is interesting to see that some of these people were WWI and WWII veterans, politicians, a funeral home owner, Hillsborough Canadian Gypsum workers and many other interesting occupations. Many also occupied some very interesting homes in our community. Most importantly, they are people who influenced where our community came from.

Preliminary steps are being taken to build a community activity offering for this fall that will be focused on teaching children and young adults skills like pottery, basic computer servicing and introduction to plumbing, with other offerings to follow. To make this a success we will be asking for donations of old computers and hardware, support from people in our community with a passion for their craft and people who want to learn while having fun.

Alma Gets Loud for a Cause

The Alma Recreation Council hosted a successful fundraising event in Alma on Saturday, May 21st. Over a hundred people attended the event, which had live music, a silent auction, and a 50/50 draw. The band, Loaded Dice, got the crowd on their feet and played everyone's favourite rock classics. The funds raised will support the Alma rink in providing recreation opportunities for the community, including our upcoming summer soccer program, outdoor movie nights, and of course, skating next winter!

We would also like to thank the generous sponsors for the event: Village of Alma, Crooked Creek Convenience, Collins Lobster Shop, Vista Ridge Cottages, LongHorn Transportation, and East Coast Kids Child Care & Learning Center.

Keep an eye on the Alma Recreation Council Facebook page for updates about upcoming events and activities! If you have ideas for the rink or would like to volunteer, you can reach the Alma Recreation Council by sending us a message on Facebook.
